Malaysian is FUSION

Our restaurant pays culinary homage to that Malaysian spirit of openness, innovation and 'mix & match' to create amazing culinary experiences.

Zheng is named after the Chinese Admiral Zheng He, whose travels in the early 15th century sealed the establishment of the Malacca Empire (effectively today's modern Malaysia) as the Southeast Asian centre of trade, commerce and of course cuisine.

Zheng He was one of the world's great explorers, sailing throughout the East as a peaceful diplomat of the Chinese Ming emperor. Born in Kunyang, Yunnan in the late 14th Century as a Muslim, when he was just 10 years old his homeland was invaded. Zheng He was taken prisoner and made a palace eunuch. As he grew into manhood, his intelligence, bravery and loyalty earned him the trust of the emperor and he rose up the imperial administrative hierarchy to the venerable position of Chief Envoy of the Royal Fleet.

Historical records show that during seven voyages, Zheng He visited coastal cities across South East Asia, South Asia, Western Asia and Africa often accompanied by a massive retinue of over 300 ships and about 30,000 crew. Everywhere he went he would exchange gifts and share knowledge and technology with native communities. Some argue that Zheng He's missionary zeal had a significant impact on the known world. In his best-selling book "1421 - the year China discovered the world" Gavin Menzies even presents evidence to support his surprising claim Zheng He discovered America before Christopher Columbus!

Zheng He landed on the shores of Malacca on five of his voyages. Witnessing the rise of the Malacca empire and the beginning of centuries of exchanged goods, ideas, people and culture, that transformed Malacca into an open and diverse community, melting pot of cultures, religions and the practice of fusion cuisine.

Today, Malaysia comprises three major ethnic communities, each has played an important role in defining "Malaysian Cuisine". The Malays have perfected the art of mixing local and imported herbs and spices in their cooking; the Chinese brought to Malaysia woks and sauces; the Indians introduced their roti's and hot curries. The three combined culinary traditions have preserved their distinct identities, but have also influenced each other over the years to create an exciting & vibrant national Malaysian cuisine - Asia's finest!
